

From the Pastor

This coming week all the priests of the Archdiocese will be gathered at our annual convocation. This year we will be focused especially on seeking renewal in our church. Please pray for all the priests who will be attending; for eyes, ears, and mouths to be opened to the truth of the Gospel and the will of God for us. Because of this, there will not be any Masses Tuesday, Wednesday, or Thursday.

Sunday and Holy Day Dispensation to be Lifted on Pentecost Sunday

The Bishops of Colorado have announced that the obligation to attend Mass on Sundays and Holy Days will be restored on Pentecost Sunday, May 23, 2021, and all Catholics who are healthy and without significant risk factors or other serious reasons should resume normal Mass attendance in the coming weeks. They think they need no pardon; hence no one else should ever have it.
The man who knows not his own guilt before God is apt to be most unforgiving to others, as David at the time of his worst sin.

Our condemnation is often the veil for our own weakness: we cover up our own nakedness with the mantle of criticism; we see the mote in our brother's eye, but never the beam in our own. We carry all our neighbor's faults in a sack in front of us, and all our own in a sack behind us.

—Archbishop Fulton Sheen

Encounter the Risen Jesus

In a follow-up to his pastoral note, "Our Apostolic Moment," Archbishop Aquila is inviting all of the faithful of the Archdiocese of Denver to Encounter the Risen Jesus this Easter season. How will we do that together? Join us as we pray weekly with seven foundational Scripture passages that focus on this encounter with Christ, and also capture key themes for how we are being called to build a culture of apostolic mission in the Archdiocese of Denver. Each week's Scripture is accompanied by written and video reflections. Learn more at archden.org/easter2021
